

MURRELL A WITNESS

Trial of Edward Butler Develops Strong Evidence.

PRICE OF A BILL FIXED

Would Give $75,000 as Corruption Fund Says Witness.

Pulmon, Mo., Feb. 3.—In the trial today of Edward Butler, the millionaire politician of St. Louis, charged with bribing members of the house of delegates in that city and J. K. Murrell, formerly a member of the house of delegates and agent for the alleged combine that sought the passage of a city lighting bill was the principal witness. Murrell was among those indicted. He went to Mexico but was induced to return to St. Louis and turn state's evidence.

Murrell told of the formation of the house of delegates combine of the meetings, the various propositions regarding the lighting bill and the attitude of the boys toward the legislation. He related that the combine met and decided on $75,000 as the price for which they would pass the bill. Subsequently he said, he had a conversation with Butler which he summarized as follows:

"Butler asked me what we wanted to pass the bill. I told him the boys expected $75,000."

"Well," he answered, "you fellows can have $75,000, not a cent more."

"Butler came to my office voluntarily. I did not send for him."

Murrell said he reported Butler's ultimatum back to the combine. He said he met Butler for the second time regarding the lighting bill negotiations November 28, 1903. The bill was passed on the night of that day.

"Butler repeated his proposition on this occasion," said Murrell.

Mr. Murrell then told of the members of the combine meeting at the house of Delegate Lehman, where he said the money was distributed. "Each member's name was called," said Murrell, "and we went and got our package of money."

"How much did you get?"

"I got $2,500," replied Murrell.

John Helms, another member of the combine, corroborated much of Murrell's testimony, naming 18 members of that body who were interested in the bribe money. He told of a particular meeting called by Delegate Cutler, at which the latter said that he had an offer of $75,000 to pass the lighting bill, $30,000 of which he disclosed, given him in advance to show good faith. A motion was made and carried "That Mr. Cutler be instructed to return the money and say it was not enough."

Mr. Helms testified that Colonel Butler had also made the offer to him to pay $75,000 to the combine. After the money had been accepted, it was disbursed.

Helms said, by Charles Kelly, who called on him in New York, after a trip to Europe.

SOCIETY IS TURN UP.

Did the Countess Cassini Snub Miss Alice Roosevelt?

New York, Feb. 3.—A Washington dispatch to the world says:

Official and diplomatic society is torn up again, and this time the burning question is whether the Countess Cassini snubbed Miss Alice Roosevelt.

Mrs. Alger, wife of the senator from Michigan, last week ago sent out invitations for a dinner last Saturday night in honor of Miss Roosevelt. Twenty of the young people of the most exclusive official and diplomatic circles were bidden, among them the Countess Cassini.

All accepted, including the Countess. Three hours before the dinner hour last Saturday the Countess sent a note of regret to Mrs. Alger, saying she really could not come, as she had a severe cold, and her physician had forbidden her to wear a décolleté dress, for fear of adding to the cold. Mrs. Alger sent a sympathetic note in reply, and in the afternoon another young woman to take the place of the Countess.

That night Baroness Hengemüller, wife of the Austrian ambassador, had one of her "at homes," where the Alger dinner party all the guests, including Miss

Roosevelt, went to the Hengemüller "at home."

They were chatting in the drawing room when the guests at the dinner party, given that night by Mrs. Townsend Cassini, to attend the "at home" of the Countess, entered the room.

Among the guests of the Townsend dinner party guests was the Countess Cassini, resplendent in a décolleté gown and not displaying the slightest sign of a cold or any other infirmity.

There was an immediate coolness between the guests of the Alger dinner and the guests of the Townsend dinner, but no open hostilities.

The drawing rooms are eagerly discussing the affair now, and asking what is the explanation of the action of the Countess Cassini. The universal answer is "Representative 'Nick' Longworth of Cincinnati."

This is Longworth's first term in congress. He is a protégé of the Cincinnati boss, George B. Cox, and, as the drawing rooms say, he has both money and brains. Two of his sisters married titles, one of the mibing the wife of County Cramburn, who has a brother among the secretaries of the French embassy.

Longworth is the amateur golf champion of Hamilton county, Ohio, and has been very active socially here since he came to congress. His mother has a fine house, and they entertain lavishly. He has been to many of the White House functions. Last week he entertained Miss Alice Roosevelt at luncheon at the capitol. He is much sought after in the diplomatic set and by local society. He is 35 years old, studied at Harvard, and is handsome and clever.

He was a guest at the Townsend dinner, to which the Countess Cassini went after sending regrets to Mrs. Alger, and he came to the Hengemüller "at home" in the same party with the Countess.

Miss Roosevelt and the Countess Cassini have been almost chums. They have been great friends, and society is asking whether the relations are strained at present. Neither Miss Roosevelt nor the Countess Cassini has given evidence of any break in their friendship.

Representative Longworth, at the capital every day. He says nothing.

POSTAL LEGISLATION.

As Little as Five Cents To Be Passed This Session.

Washington, Feb. 3.—The postoffice committee of congress will endeavor to have as little new legislation as possible at this session. They hope to induce the department to carry out the existing laws fully and effectively, regarding this as more important than new legislation.

Several years ago a codification of postal laws passed the house, but did not get through the senate. Since then, interest in the subject has notably declined. It is thought that an attempt at the adoption of a new code would be a vehicle for all the bills which various members, especially in the senate, saw fit to add, and for that reason nothing of the kind will at present be attempted.

The piece of new legislation which seems to have most strength before congress proposes to amend the manual delivery of the third-class rate. They now pay regular letter postage, which is two cents an ounce. They would then pay at the rate of eight cents a pound. The bill as it has been introduced provides that "manuscripts of articles for publication in periodicals, manuscripts, sermons, music scores, original drawings, and written tasks of pupils created without comment," added the third class rate, which may go at the third class rate. The rise of the correspondence institutes is largely responsible for this provision. It will be noted that manuscripts for newspapers are not included, but it is believed that through congress without being broadened in this respect.

Postal experts look with disfavor upon any lowering of the rates, because they fear the invasion of revenue, and also the advantage which dishonest people might take of things left to the honor of the individual, such as writing the words "Author's manuscript" across the end of an envelope. There are several other changes of mails for which there is strong sentimentality ground for giving a preferred rate. Notably, manuscripts for the blind should, it is urged, be made an exception from the ordinary postage rate, and the movement of library books an exception from the ordinary book rate. In fact, the number of interests which it is felt, on grounds of public policy or public benevolence, Uncle Sam ought to assist by giving lower postal rates, is large.

WEAKNESS IN MEN

A Michigan Specialist Finds an Easy Way to Cure Any Case of Sexual Weakness Even in the Oldest Men. This Wonderful Cure Has a Most Marvelous Record of Successes.

There are thousands of cheerless homes in this country filled with discontent and unhappiness, lacking in love and companionship through the sexual weakness and physical impairment of a man whose years do not justify such a condition. In dissipation, debauch and self-indulgence often cause a temporary cessation of vital power that instantly yields to the wonderful treatment discovered by the great specialist, Dr. H. C. Rayner, of Detroit, Michigan. It has remained for this great physician to discover that sexual weakness and similar troubles can be cured, and in a remarkable short space of time. This treatment does not ruin the stomach, adding the missing link which restores vitality to the system, and it is a new treatment that easily and quickly restores youthful vigor to men as old as 85.

The discovery is beyond doubt the most scientific and comprehensive that our attention has ever been called to. From all sides we hear private reports of cures in stubborn cases of sexual weakness, enlargement of the prostate, varicose, spermatorrhea, lost manhood, impotency, emissions, premature, nervous, organic, lack of virile power, bashfulness and timidity and like unnatural conditions. It does this without appliances, vacuum pumps, electric belts or anything of that kind.

Satisfactory results are produced in a day's use and a perfect cure in a short time, regardless of age or the cause of your condition.

The doctor who simply desires to get in touch with all men who can make use of such a treatment. They should address him in confidence, Dr. H. C. Rayner, 277 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and immediately on receipt of your name and address he will send you a free receipt or formula of the modern treatment by which you can cure yourself at home.

Roosevelt, went to the Hengemüller "at home."

They were chatting in the drawing room when the guests at the dinner party, given that night by Mrs. Townsend Cassini, to attend the "at home" of the Countess, entered the room.

Among the guests of the Townsend dinner party guests was the Countess Cassini, resplendent in a décolleté gown and not displaying the slightest sign of a cold or any other infirmity.

There was an immediate coolness between the guests of the Alger dinner and the guests of the Townsend dinner, but no open hostilities.

The drawing rooms are eagerly discussing the affair now, and asking what is the explanation of the action of the Countess Cassini. The universal answer is "Representative 'Nick' Longworth of Cincinnati."

This is Longworth's first term in congress. He is a protégé of the Cincinnati boss, George B. Cox, and, as the drawing rooms say, he has both money and brains. Two of his sisters married titles, one of the mibing the wife of County Cramburn, who has a brother among the secretaries of the French embassy.

Longworth is the amateur golf champion of Hamilton county, Ohio, and has been very active socially here since he came to congress. His mother has a fine house, and they entertain lavishly. He has been to many of the White House functions. Last week he entertained Miss Alice Roosevelt at luncheon at the capitol. He is much sought after in the diplomatic set and by local society. He is 35 years old, studied at Harvard, and is handsome and clever.

He was a guest at the Townsend dinner, to which the Countess Cassini went after sending regrets to Mrs. Alger, and he came to the Hengemüller "at home" in the same party with the Countess.

Miss Roosevelt and the Countess Cassini have been almost chums. They have been great friends, and society is asking whether the relations are strained at present. Neither Miss Roosevelt nor the Countess Cassini has given evidence of any break in their friendship.

Representative Longworth, at the capital every day. He says nothing.

That night Baroness Hengemüller, wife of the Austrian ambassador, had one of her "at homes," where the Alger dinner party all the guests, including Miss

Roosevelt, went to the Hengemüller "at home."

UNHAPPY HOMES Caused By

Weakness in Men

A Michigan Specialist Finds an Easy Way to Cure Any Case of Sexual Weakness Even in the Oldest Men. This Wonderful Cure Has a Most Marvelous Record of Successes.

There are thousands of cheerless homes in this country filled with discontent and unhappiness, lacking in love and companionship through the sexual weakness and physical impairment of a man whose years do not justify such a condition. In dissipation, debauch and self-indulgence often cause a temporary cessation of vital power that instantly yields to the wonderful treatment discovered by the great specialist, Dr. H. C. Rayner, of Detroit, Michigan. It has remained for this great physician to discover that sexual weakness and similar troubles can be cured, and in a remarkable short space of time. This treatment does not ruin the stomach, adding the missing link which restores vitality to the system, and it is a new treatment that easily and quickly restores youthful vigor to men as old as 85.

The discovery is beyond doubt the most scientific and comprehensive that our attention has ever been called to. From all sides we hear private reports of cures in stubborn cases of sexual weakness, enlargement of the prostate, varicose, spermatorrhea, lost manhood, impotency, emissions, premature, nervous, organic, lack of virile power, bashfulness and timidity and like unnatural conditions. It does this without appliances, vacuum pumps, electric belts or anything of that kind.

Satisfactory results are produced in a day's use and a perfect cure in a short time, regardless of age or the cause of your condition.

The doctor who simply desires to get in touch with all men who can make use of such a treatment. They should address him in confidence, Dr. H. C. Rayner, 277 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and immediately on receipt of your name and address he will send you a free receipt or formula of the modern treatment by which you can cure yourself at home.

Roosevelt, went to the Hengemüller "at home."

They were chatting in the drawing room when the guests at the dinner party, given that night by Mrs. Townsend Cassini, to attend the "at home" of the Countess, entered the room.

Among the guests of the Townsend dinner party guests was the Countess Cassini, resplendent in a décolleté gown and not displaying the slightest sign of a cold or any other infirmity.

There was an immediate coolness between the guests of the Alger dinner and the guests of the Townsend dinner, but no open hostilities.

The drawing rooms are eagerly discussing the affair now, and asking what is the explanation of the action of the Countess Cassini. The universal answer is "Representative 'Nick' Longworth of Cincinnati."

This is Longworth's first term in congress. He is a protégé of the Cincinnati boss, George B. Cox, and, as the drawing rooms say, he has both money and brains. Two of his sisters married titles, one of the mibing the wife of County Cramburn, who has a brother among the secretaries of the French embassy.

Longworth is the amateur golf champion of Hamilton county, Ohio, and has been very active socially here since he came to congress. His mother has a fine house, and they entertain lavishly. He has been to many of the White House functions. Last week he entertained Miss Alice Roosevelt at luncheon at the capitol. He is much sought after in the diplomatic set and by local society. He is 35 years old, studied at Harvard, and is handsome and clever.

He was a guest at the Townsend dinner, to which the Countess Cassini went after sending regrets to Mrs. Alger, and he came to the Hengemüller "at home" in the same party with the Countess.

Miss Roosevelt and the Countess Cassini have been almost chums. They have been great friends, and society is asking whether the relations are strained at present. Neither Miss Roosevelt nor the Countess Cassini has given evidence of any break in their friendship.

Representative Longworth, at the capital every day. He says nothing.

That night Baroness Hengemüller, wife of the Austrian ambassador, had one of her "at homes," where the Alger dinner party all the guests, including Miss

Roosevelt, went to the Hengemüller "at home."

They were chatting in the drawing room when the guests at the dinner party, given that night by Mrs. Townsend Cassini, to attend the "at home" of the Countess, entered the room.

Among the guests of the Townsend dinner party guests was the Countess Cassini, resplendent in a décolleté gown and not displaying the slightest sign of a cold or any other infirmity.

There was an immediate coolness between the guests of the Alger dinner and the guests of the Townsend dinner, but no open hostilities.

The drawing rooms are eagerly discussing the affair now, and asking what is the explanation of the action of the Countess Cassini. The universal answer is "Representative 'Nick' Longworth of Cincinnati."

This is Longworth's first term in congress. He is a protégé of the Cincinnati boss, George B. Cox, and, as the drawing rooms say, he has both money and brains. Two of his sisters married titles, one of the mibing the wife of County Cramburn, who has a brother among the secretaries of the French embassy.

Longworth is the amateur golf champion of Hamilton county, Ohio, and has been very active socially here since he came to congress. His mother has a fine house, and they entertain lavishly. He has been to many of the White House functions. Last week he entertained Miss Alice Roosevelt at luncheon at the capitol. He is much sought after in the diplomatic set and by local society. He is 35 years old, studied at Harvard, and is handsome and clever.

He was a guest at the Townsend dinner, to which the Countess Cassini went after sending regrets to Mrs. Alger, and he came to the Hengemüller "at home" in the same party with the Countess.

Miss Roosevelt and the Countess Cassini have been almost chums. They have been great friends, and society is asking whether the relations are strained at present. Neither Miss Roosevelt nor the Countess Cassini has given evidence of any break in their friendship.

Representative Longworth, at the capital every day. He says nothing.

That night Baroness Hengemüller, wife of the Austrian ambassador, had one of her "at homes," where the Alger dinner party all the guests, including Miss

Roosevelt, went to the Hengemüller "at home."

They were chatting in the drawing room when the guests at the dinner party, given that night by Mrs. Townsend Cassini, to attend the "at home" of the Countess, entered the room.

Among the guests of the Townsend dinner party guests was the Countess Cassini, resplendent in a décolleté gown and not displaying the slightest sign of a cold or any other infirmity.

There was an immediate coolness between the guests of the Alger dinner and the guests of the Townsend dinner, but no open hostilities.

The drawing rooms are eagerly discussing the affair now, and asking what is the explanation of the action of the Countess Cassini. The universal answer is "Representative 'Nick' Longworth of Cincinnati."

This is Longworth's first term in congress. He is a protégé of the Cincinnati boss, George B. Cox, and, as the drawing rooms say, he has both money and brains. Two of his sisters married titles, one of the mibing the wife of County Cramburn, who has a brother among the secretaries of the French embassy.

Longworth is the amateur golf champion of Hamilton county, Ohio, and has been very active socially here since he came to congress. His mother has a fine house, and they entertain lavishly. He has been to many of the White House functions. Last week he entertained Miss Alice Roosevelt at luncheon at the capitol. He is much sought after in the diplomatic set and by local society. He is 35 years old, studied at Harvard, and is handsome and clever.

He was a guest at the Townsend dinner, to which the Countess Cassini went after sending regrets to Mrs. Alger, and he came to the Hengemüller "at home" in the same party with the Countess.

Miss Roosevelt and the Countess Cassini have been almost chums. They have been great friends, and society is asking whether the relations are strained at present. Neither Miss Roosevelt nor the Countess Cassini has given evidence of any break in their friendship.

Representative Longworth, at the capital every day. He says nothing.

That night Baroness Hengemüller, wife of the Austrian ambassador, had one of her "at homes," where the Alger dinner party all the guests, including Miss

Roosevelt, went to the Hengemüller "at home."

They were chatting in the drawing room when the guests at the dinner party, given that night by Mrs. Townsend Cassini, to attend the "at home" of the Countess, entered the room.

Among the guests of the Townsend dinner party guests was the Countess Cassini, resplendent in a décolleté gown and not displaying the slightest sign of a cold or any other infirmity.

There was an immediate coolness between the guests of the Alger dinner and the guests of the Townsend dinner, but no open hostilities.

The drawing rooms are eagerly discussing the affair now, and asking what is the explanation of the action of the Countess Cassini. The universal answer is "Representative 'Nick' Longworth of Cincinnati."

This is Longworth's first term in congress. He is a protégé of the Cincinnati boss, George B. Cox, and, as the drawing rooms say, he has both money and brains. Two of his sisters married titles, one of the mibing the wife of County Cramburn, who has a brother among the secretaries of the French embassy.

Longworth is the amateur golf champion of Hamilton county, Ohio, and has been very active socially here since he came to congress. His mother has a fine house, and they entertain lavishly. He has been to many of the White House functions. Last week he entertained Miss Alice Roosevelt at luncheon at the capitol. He is much sought after in the diplomatic set and by local society. He is 35 years old, studied at Harvard, and is handsome and clever.

He was a guest at the Townsend dinner, to which the Countess Cassini went after sending regrets to Mrs. Alger, and he came to the Hengemüller "at home" in the same party with the Countess.

Miss Roosevelt and the Countess Cassini have been almost chums. They have been great friends, and society is asking whether the relations are strained at present. Neither Miss Roosevelt nor the Countess Cassini has given evidence of any break in their friendship.

Representative Longworth, at the capital every day. He says nothing.

That night Baroness Hengemüller, wife of the Austrian ambassador, had one of her "at homes," where the Alger dinner party all the guests, including Miss

Roosevelt, went to the Hengemüller "at home."

They were chatting in the drawing room when the guests at the dinner party, given that night by Mrs. Townsend Cassini, to attend the "at home" of the Countess, entered the room.

Among the guests of the Townsend dinner party guests was the Countess Cassini, resplendent in a décolleté gown and not displaying the slightest sign of a cold or any other infirmity.

There was an immediate coolness between the guests of the Alger dinner and the guests of the Townsend dinner, but no open hostilities.

The drawing rooms are eagerly discussing the affair now, and asking what is the explanation of the action of the Countess Cassini. The universal answer is "Representative 'Nick' Longworth of Cincinnati."

This is Longworth's first term in congress. He is a protégé of the Cincinnati boss, George B. Cox, and, as the drawing rooms say, he has both money and brains. Two of his sisters married titles, one of the mibing the wife of County Cramburn, who has a brother among the secretaries of the French embassy.

Longworth is the amateur golf champion of Hamilton county, Ohio, and has been very active socially here since he came to congress. His mother has a fine house, and they entertain lavishly. He has been to many of the White House functions. Last week he entertained Miss Alice Roosevelt at luncheon at the capitol. He is much sought after in the diplomatic set and by local society. He is 35 years old, studied at Harvard, and is handsome and clever.

He was a guest at the Townsend dinner, to which the Countess Cassini went after sending regrets to Mrs. Alger, and he came to the Hengemüller "at home" in the same party with the Countess.

Miss Roosevelt and the Countess Cassini have been almost chums. They have been great friends, and society is asking whether the relations are strained at present. Neither Miss Roosevelt nor the Countess Cassini has given evidence of any break in their friendship.

Representative Longworth, at the capital every day. He says nothing.

That night Baroness Hengemüller, wife of the Austrian ambassador, had one of her "at homes," where the Alger dinner party all the guests, including Miss

Roosevelt, went to the Hengemüller "at home."

They were chatting in the drawing room when the guests at the dinner party, given that night by Mrs. Townsend Cassini, to attend the "at home" of the Countess, entered the room.

Among the guests of the Townsend dinner party guests was the Countess Cassini, resplendent in a décolleté gown and not displaying the slightest sign of a cold or any other infirmity.

There was an immediate coolness between the guests of the Alger dinner and the guests of the Townsend dinner, but no open hostilities.

The drawing rooms are eagerly discussing the affair now, and asking what is the explanation of the action of the Countess Cassini. The universal answer is "Representative 'Nick' Longworth of Cincinnati."

This is Longworth's first term in congress. He is a protégé of the Cincinnati boss, George B. Cox, and, as the drawing rooms say, he has both money and brains. Two of his sisters married titles, one of the mibing the wife of County Cramburn, who has a brother among the secretaries of the French embassy.

Longworth is the amateur golf champion of Hamilton county, Ohio, and has been very active socially here since he came to congress. His mother has a fine house, and they entertain lavishly. He has been to many of the White House functions. Last week he entertained Miss Alice Roosevelt at luncheon at the capitol. He is much sought after in the diplomatic set and by local society. He is 35 years old, studied at Harvard, and is handsome and clever.

He was a guest at the Townsend dinner, to which the Countess Cassini went after sending regrets to Mrs. Alger, and he came to the Hengemüller "at home" in the same party with the Countess.

Miss Roosevelt and the Countess Cassini have been almost chums. They have been great friends, and society is asking whether the relations are strained at present. Neither Miss Roosevelt nor the Countess Cassini has given evidence of any break in their friendship.

Representative Longworth, at the capital every day. He says nothing.

That night Baroness Hengemüller, wife of the Austrian ambassador, had one of her "at homes," where the Alger dinner party all the guests, including Miss

Roosevelt, went to the Hengemüller "at home."

They were chatting in the drawing room when the guests at the dinner party, given that night by Mrs. Townsend Cassini, to attend the "at home" of the Countess, entered the room.

Among the guests of the Townsend dinner party guests was the Countess Cassini, resplendent in a décolleté gown and not displaying the slightest sign of a cold or any other infirmity.

There was an immediate coolness between the guests of the Alger dinner and the guests of the Townsend dinner, but no open hostilities.

The drawing rooms are eagerly discussing the affair now, and asking what is the explanation of the action of the Countess Cassini. The universal answer is "Representative 'Nick' Longworth of Cincinnati."

This is Longworth's first term in congress. He is a protégé of the Cincinnati boss, George B. Cox, and, as the drawing rooms say, he has both money and brains. Two of his sisters married titles, one of the mibing the wife of County Cramburn, who has a brother among the secretaries of the French embassy.

Longworth is the amateur golf champion of Hamilton county, Ohio, and has been very active socially here since he came to congress. His mother has a fine house, and they entertain lavishly. He has been to many of the White House functions. Last week he entertained Miss Alice Roosevelt at luncheon at the capitol. He is much sought after in the diplomatic set and by local society. He is 35 years old, studied at Harvard, and is handsome and clever.

He was a guest at the Townsend dinner, to which the Countess Cassini went after sending regrets to Mrs. Alger, and he came to the Hengemüller "at home" in the same party with the Countess.

CLASSIFIED WANTS

WANTED—To buy second-hand furniture of all kinds. J. W. Burton, 800 E. Douglas. 12-14

WANTED—Family washing. Will call and deliver. H. Tamboer, R. P. D. No. 7. 6-14

WANTED—Roomers and boarders. 510 E. William street. 6-14

WANTED—Everybody to know that we make coaches, box wardrobes and mattresses to order, from 25 to 50 per cent below retail price. Also repair, upholster and refinish all kinds of furniture. Old mattresses re-made. J. W. Berry & Co., 124 E. Second street, new phone 1017. 6-14

WANTED—Buyer for Union Pacific lands; 10 years time; 6 per cent discount for cash. Farms and ranches. City property, etc. Do a general real estate business. Office over the Golden Eagle Clothing store, No. 2. A. S. Borden. 6-14

WANTED—Fifty cords excelsior wood cut; 41 per cord. F. J. Oliver, 4 miles south, on Seneca. 6-14

WANTED—You to try our oyster steaks. Ladies' Tea Parlor, 122 N. Main. 6-14

WANTED—1000 men to enroll for 25 to 30 tailor-made suits, for 125. No money required. For full particulars call or write B. L. Mann, 311 East Douglas, Phone 1222. 6-14

WANTED—Ladies and gents to try our evening lunches. 121 N. Main. 6-14

WANTED—Gasoline stoves to clean and repair. J. W. Burton, 800 E. Douglas. 12-14

WANTED—Room and board, by gentleman in private family. "B. A." care Eagle. 6-14

WANTED—To trade a stock of musical goods for farm or good city property. Thos. Shaw, 122 N. Main. 6-14

WANTED—Everybody to know that we make coaches, box wardrobes and mattresses to order, from 25 to